Clear cut policy . . . .

Wisner Thefts Provoke Action

by Mark J. Angelo

At its most recent monthly meeting, the Wisner Dining Hall Committee discussed considerations of what it called a "clear cut discipline policy." Provoked by recent break-ins, thefts, and food fights, the committee has recommended a specific dining hall disciplinary action be added to the Student Handbook.

Ed Barnes, Food Service Director, submitted a bill of $4,930.37 to the committee representing the replacement costs of over ten thousand articles missing from the dining hall including some 1,296 dinner forks, 1,728 teaspoons, 1,488 dinner plates and 1,658 plastic glasses, to name only a few. Barnes also claimed missing bread knives, tablecloths, and empty milk cartons pushing the total fall semester bill for stolen Wisner property well over $5,000. It was decided disciplinary action was the most suitable deterrent. Specific action was not agreed upon, however, fines, probation and loss of dining hall privileges were among those suggested. The committee sought to remind students that the damage bill will be absorbed in higher room and board fees, meaning the students will bear unnecessary costs.

Recommended policy action was aimed at controlling student behavior in the cafeteria. Students caught neglecting the rules of the dining hall disciplinary code will now be punished accordingly, in an effort to hold down inflated dining hall affiliated costs.

The committee regretted such measures as a disciplinarian, but feels the behavior of students has prompted such adverse disciplinary action.

KDK Attains Highest GPA

by Georgeann Fusco

Kappa Delta Kappa has achieved the highest cumulative average of 83.23 for the fall semester of 1981 according to a recent report disclosed by the Dean of Student Life office. KDK also ranked first place among the other sororities during the Spring Semester of 1981 achieving an average of 83.60 a difference of .37. Alpha Sigma Nu held the second highest cumulative at 82.98 an increase of .11 over their spring semester average of 82.87. Tau Sigma Gamma moved up from fourth place in the spring semester of 1981 at 81.25 to third and a cumulative average of 82.81 for the fall semester 1981. Phi Alpha Psi achieved an average of 82.04 for the fall semester of 1981 a decrease of 1.37 from their average in the spring semester at 83.41. Omega Chi's cumulative average for the fall semester of 1981 is 78.81 a decrease of 1.34 from the spring semester at 80.15.

Associate Dean of Student Life Leslie S. March, Inter-Sorority Council Advisor, met with Dean of Student Life J. Houghton Kane, sorority advisors, sorority pledge mistresses and other members of the ISC to formulate and clarify the rules of pledging. Sixty-nine sorority bids were accepted but only 67 of the women completed pledging. Pledging impact records were kept by faculty members to record the academic performances of the pledges. Their findings included the following: 1) Twenty-one women decreased their performance in one course; 2) Two women decreased their abilities in two courses; 3) two women improved academically; 4) Forty-

Lloyd's Tenure Rejection Official

by Kevin Burke

For the first time in the school's history, a faculty member has formally challenged an administrative decision by resorting to the exhaustive means of an Arbitration Appeals Committee. The result has been the end of semester-long deliberations and the rejection of Dr. Danuta S. Lloyd's tenure, which was the central issue of the appeal.

The committee related that the grounds for this decision were based solely upon departmental size and financial considerations. The school feels at this time in a small German department of steady yet low enrollment that two full-time tenured professors would present an unnecessary financial burden. While acknowledging Dr. Lloyd's academic performance and professional abilities as superior, the committee unconditionally stated such merits did not enter into the final decision.

The matter of the existence of animosity between Dr. Clouser (German Dept. Head) and Dr. Lloyd did enter into the discussions though, as did the fact that Dr. Clouser "has demonstrated great difficulty in dealing with other members of his department. This raised questions as to whether the administration's decision, based partly on input from Dr. Clouser was indeed completely objective. The committee stated, however, that such presentations had no bearing on the college's decision against tenure.

The committee was also compelled to respond to specific allegations presented by Dr. Lloyd. One point delivered by Dr. Lloyd concluded that although the number of German majors is dwindling, there has been an increase in those seeking minor concentrations, as well as the fact that there always exists the usual number of students taking the lower level courses to fulfill their language requirement. The committee decided, however, that "further declines in enrollment may occur," based on a comparative analysis with other institutions.

Another point of contention, the most publicized of numerous personal and professional disagreements (between Dr. Lloyd and Dr. Clouser) involved a difference of professional opinion. It pivoted on a definition of plagiarism, concerning student honors papers of the academic year 1979-80 that

Rod Luck Visits W's Gymnastics

Ursinus received some special coverage Wednesday when NBC sportscaster Rod Luck showed up with video cameraman Russ Freeman to interview Angela Morrison, head coach of the Women's gymnastics team. The Channel 3 cameraman then took some footage of the team during training in Helfferich Hall which was shown last night at 6:25 p.m. on Channel 3.

When questioned about the reason for the coverage Luck commented that only Division I schools ever get covered and he thought it might be interesting to give some credit to the Division III schools also: "You don't always need a big news story just to give something coverage. We like to cover the little guy too." He equated it to stopping in at a Sixers practice just to interview a player. Just because it isn't headlines does not mean people won't be interested.

Luck asked if he could come out and see the team after hearing about it from the Public Relations Office.

Mike Cash, head of PR, explained that UC scores are always called in to NBC and that by chance, Luck answered the phone. Women's sports is gaining more recognition every day and therefore is in demand with the media, since UC will also be hosting the local PAIAW competition for gymnastics, UC was an obvious stop. Either way, it's about time somebody heard of us.

New Faculty Program a Contradiction of Goals?

by Kevin Burke

In last week's letter to the editor, President Richter boasted of a new, extensive program with accompanying funds which will strengthen our faculty.

This "major step in the enrichment of Ursinus" however, can be viewed as diametrically opposed to present school policy. How ironic it is that we are developing a faculty enrichment program, without a doubt a positive gesture, yet concomitantly dismiss sound, professional teachers who are proven academicians, such as Drs. Lloyd and Phillips. The administration would have us believe despite releasing such faculty who are devoted to the higher ideals of this institution, and all the while importing other teachers on a temporary basis, that faculty excellence will be maintained. Without a doubt, the students will be the ones who inevitably suffer.

I agree that in accordance with a liberal arts institution, faculty should be prompted to broaden their horizons, and I applaud the idea of temporary faculty exchange, but only in so much that it will increase student sensitivity to the ability and devotion of our faculty. After all, outside teachers who are not vying for tenured positions or who realize that in due time tenure could be swept away from them, will have no real commitment to the student or Ursinus as an institution. Even worse, you could acquire temporary uncommitted teachers from our neighboring institutions who are of only mediocre professional caliber.

I have no unequivocal solutions for faculty enhancement. Indeed faculty development is a worthy endeavor. But how about a longer termed, more internally concentrated effort to ensure and positively encourage faculty commitment? I think a forum held by Dr. Miller, Pilgrim, Parsons or Bozorth would prove as interesting as one by a Hermann Eilts. We have a wide range of wizards who should share their thoughts on current and relative topics. Required research and publication with the incentive of a guaranteed, paid sabbatical doesn't sound unreasonable either.

And by commitment I don't mean the kind that a Mr. Davidson of the Athletic Dept. exhibits by performing the duties of two, possibly three staff members. Nor do the students expect the bargain basement education and coaching such as Larry Karas has been forced to render due to holding the multiple and somewhat disparate positions of head football coach and head tennis coach, while serving as a full-time gym teacher.

My intention here is not to kick a dead dog (it has often been said of Karas that he would be a fine recruiting coach for any Div. I school), but it is beyond my comprehension how incompetency prevailed in the football program for so long. What was the administration's purpose here? To claim in the handbook that we maintain a football team? If so, the administration dupes every dedicated player ever involved in its costly machination. In a game that is unquestionably the most physically abusive to the human body, Ursinus has included a new dimension to the phrase "insult added to injury."

As of two years ago even the insurance plan for athletes had no definitive structure. Last year the Women's Lacrosse team finished second in the nation. Still, with this season's start nearing, no head coach has been found and practices are student-run. All this demonstrates just some of the problems in one department. Yet similar disturbing shortcomings pervade each department on campus. Such are the problems inherently encountered with an overburdened, underpaid, limited or otherwise restricted faculty.

I maintain then that the college reassess the direction it is taking, but more importantly I petition all students to pressure such a movement. While the inadequacies may not be apparent to unaccustomed underclassmen, I doubt that those ready to leave here have overlooked them. This school's most important asset is its student body. We must demand more from our astronomical tuitions and require a thorough house-cleaning before we invest in ornamental rugs to cover the dirt.

LETTERS

To the Editor:

I would like to express my appreciation and heartfelt thanks to all students who were kind enough to sign the petition to the Appeals Committee on my behalf. Your support means much to me and I shall always remember it.

Danuta S. Lloyd

President's Corner:

On Energy Conservation

by Pres. Richard P. Richter

At a recent meeting, members of the Buildings and Grounds Committee learned that, at present rates and levels of use, the cost of electricity at the College in 1981-82 will exceed that of 1980-81 by nearly 10%.

The committee members also learned that the consumption of fuel oil and gas has remained at about the level for 1980-81. At this rate of use, costs will not go down — even though the inflationary spiral in oil prices has moderated.

The College in recent years has shown a significant reduction annually in the amount of energy consumed. This has helped contain the annual rise in costs. But that favorable pattern shows signs of weakening. This should give everyone concern, since operating costs ultimately affect our charges for tuition and room and board.

There are two basic strategies for reducing energy use. One, improve the mechanical system that distributes and controls energy. Two, persuade faculty, students and staff to consume less energy.

On the mechanical side, the College continues to modify the system for efficiency. For example, we are currently installing an energy management system for the "on-line" turn-on and turn-off of heating, ventilating and air conditioning units in Wismer Hall and Myrin Library. The same system will provide less sophisticated controls in other academic buildings. The new control system should be in operation next month.

In addition, more thermal windows are being installed in New Men's Dormitory. Insulation has been installed in many buildings. New heat control valves were installed in some dormitories, with more to follow.

On the human side, I believe that we need to reawaken ourselves to the importance of a campus lifestyle that values conservation. Every student and every faculty and staff member every day can make a contribution to energy conservation if he or she will take the opportunity to do so. Close a window. Turn off lights when leaving a room. Avoid lingering under the shower. Report a mechanical malfunction right away.

I am grateful that a USGA Energy Committee has focused student attention on the need to conserve. To broaden the impact of this student group, I am proposing to call an Energy Advisory Conference. It will be attended by a broad representation of faculty, students and staff from all major buildings and representative dormitories. Mr. Nelson M. Williams, Business Manager, has accepted the responsibility for organizing this Conference.

I will charge this Conference with the responsibility to identify new opportunities on campus for energy conservation in specific buildings and to promote energy-conscious behavior in the entire campus community. I hope that The Grizzly will give generous coverage to the Conference, details about which will be forthcoming.

The problem of providing adequate energy for American society at manageable costs probably will preoccupy us throughout our lives. To focus campus attention on this problem can make an important contribution to the general education of every student.

I hope everyone will support a renewed effort on campus to conserve energy. Try to make at least one action every day to help cut energy use.

Administration's Views On Pledging

An Open Letter to Thomas Dunn, President of the Interfraternity Council:

Dear Mr. Dunn:

This year I have struggled with a desire to sit down with every fraternity member and explain my concerns about pledging. Since I cannot talk to every fraternity member, I decided to write you and to ask The Grizzly to publish my letter for others who are interested.

Education

Ursinus College is deeply committed to assisting students in developing as independent and responsible individuals. In and out of the classroom this is our goal. It is a central part of our mission statement. It is not a negotiable item. If any students, administrators, or faculty members found themselves in conflict with this mission, they would seriously have to question their presence at Ursinus.

Pledging

Fraternity (and sorority) pledging has the potential for playing an important and creative role in this student development to which Ursinus is committed. It can give both pledges and fraternity members an opportunity to plan and participate in organized activities which can emphasize both independence and responsibility.

Independence

In order for pledging to develop the independence of pledges and fraternity members, it cannot be run by the administration. Administrators should not expect to plan pledging activities or to participate directly in those activities. A student will not develop independence without practicing independence.

Responsibility

In order for pledging to develop the responsibility of pledges and fraternity members, each individual participant must answer serious questions about his responsibility. A student will not develop responsibility without practicing responsibility. The smokescreen of a group decision or the argument that an activity builds unity among pledges must not be used to stifle serious individual and group consideration of all the possible consequences of an activity. Physically dangerous activities are banned by regulation and common agreement at Ursinus. However, the degree of responsibility demonstrated by those individuals participating in academically dangerous activities must be challenged.

Debate

"Independence" and "responsibility" are words that denote general principles of human behavior. The terms are exasperatingly slippery when applied to specific situations. In borderline cases,

Installation Costs Double . . .*Bell Rate Hikes to Affect Students

by Mary Mulligan

A $426 million rate increase requested by Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania may cause many students at Ursinus College to forego the luxury of having a private phone. The proposed increase, which was filed on Dec. 15, 1981, includes hikes in both the flat and standard measured rates, as well as increases in charges for service and installation, directory assistance, operator services, and residence products.

For students and homeowners alike, the rate hikes would mean a considerable increase in the monthly cost of local phone service. The monthly cost of the residence product, or the phone itself, may increase by as much as 50% for all models, from the least expensive traditional rotary phone to the most expensive touch tone trimline phone. Charges for connecting new service may jump from $54 to $95.50, a nearly 100% increase.

According to literature distributed by Bell of PA, the increase has been requested to cover escalating costs partly due to "major changes in the nature of the telecommunications industry" along with "earnings erosion, increased wage and related expenses, higher costs of money, increased depreciation expenses, expensing of station connections, and increased independent telephone company settlement costs."

The proposed increase is presently before the Pennsylvania Utilities Commission, which is holding public hearings. Two were held on Monday in Philadelphia, and more were held on February 3 and 4 in Harrisburg and other selected cities. From the results of the hearings and other input, the PUC will reach a decision concerning the requested increase.

The PUC has nine months from the date of filing in which to act on the proposal. This would mean that if the increase is approved, it will go into effect on or about Sept. 15, 1982.

Pattern Changes Planned for Next Semester

Plans have now been finalized to effect several minor changes in the UC class schedule system. A committee, headed by Richard S. BreMiller, College Registrar, is also evaluating the possibilities of making more drastic changes in the system.

Mr. BreMiller announced this week that the changes to go into effect in the Fall 1982 semester would be the elimination of the Tuesday-Thursday patterns 4*, 9:35-10:50 a.m., 12*, 3-4:15 p.m., and 14*, 3:35-4:50 p.m. As a result of this, the four remaining 75 minute patterns will not conflict, as they do now.

A committee of Mr. BreMiller, Dr. Roger D. Coleman, and a student representative will be evaluating the present schedule system and the possibility of changing patterns so they will begin on the half hour.

The recommendations will be based on the analysis of how well the schedule hours will accommodate course offerings and possible conflicts the changes would create.

If the new schedule is accepted by the administration and Board of Directors and put into effect, the earliest classes scheduled would be 8:30 a.m. instead of 8 a.m., which would be welcomed by most students. However, the earliest this plan could take place would be the 1983-84 school year.

Mr. BreMiller welcomes written input from the student community on the schedule change possibilities.

Book Store Improves
Under New Management

Book Store has undergone some new changes since the new management took over. All of them good.

Larry Muscarella/The Grizzly

by Mark J. Angelo

Beginning with the 1982 Spring semester, the Ursinus College Book Store will be managed by Campus Books Inc., a retail subsidiary of Fifth Avenue Cards, Inc., New York City. According to Nelson M. Williams, the College Business Manager, the College Administrators foresee a financial advantage by decreasing the previously held large inventory of the book store. Though the final decision was made only last December, Williams admitted, "we have been unhappy with the bookstore for years."

The existing inventory of books and other ceramics, clothing and glassware was sold to Campus Books. The interior was painted and Campus Books plans a complete overhaul of operations and services concerning the store including the expansion of merchandise offered. Existing inventories of ceramics, clothing and glassware are presently offered at discount prices. Campus Books has not however contracted the other half of the store which was previously used for storage. According to William Friedeborn, the College Book Store Manager, "they plan to confine operations to only half of the building." As to what other products Campus Books will offer, Friedeborn could not comment.

It has been implied that the expansion of merchandise might incite competition with Collegeville merchants. Responding to this issue Williams answered, "As long as clientele is restricted to the campus, we expect no problems with the town merchants. We are trying to provide convenience for the students," Williams continued adding that complaints from the students regarding short store hours and the limited merchandise offered suggested the change of policy. Many students feel the expanded merchandise offered will encourage townspeople on campus. Williams then commented, "We won't reject sales to townspeople, but we don't want to be in competition with them." The store hours have been extended: 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Monday's and Tuesday, to better accommodate evening school students; and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesdays through Fridays. The store will remain closed on weekends as before, except for certain exceptions. The store will be open regular hours during semester breaks and vacation for summer students and visitors.

Has the bookstore become a modern gift shop? "No," says Williams, "it's just simple marketing; you need items that generate revenue (profit), a suitable offering mix to provide revenue for continued operations."

Campus Books agreed to retain the full time employees of the bookstore, and the several part-time student employees. They are however no longer employed by Ursinus, but by Campus Books. "Many other companies choose to bring in their own workers," added Williams. The retention of the store's help was a stipulation guaranteed by Campus Books.

A buy back policy has been announced where books in a pro-rated scale will be bought back at up to 50% of the publisher's suggested list price, and then resold at up to 75% of that list price. "Students have suffered since we haven't had more used books available," said Williams. Regarding possible competition with Alpha Phi Omega in the sale of used books, no comment was made.

Williams sees at least as five year agreement with Campus books and encourages that student complaints concerning the book store be referred to him. "We're pretty optimistic about the whole thing," Friedeborn concluded, "the operation will have to please the students, faculty and staff, primarily the students . . . after all, that's what it's all about."

Meeting Planned for New Resident Assistant Candidates

Any student wishing to apply for the position of Resident Assistant for the 1982-83 year must attend one of two preliminary meetings to be held next week by the Office of the Dean of Student Life.

The meetings, Monday, Feb. 8 and Thursday, Feb. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Paisley Reception Room, will provide interested students with information on the responsibilities of an RA and the qualifications all candidates must meet for consideration. Applications for the positions will also be distributed.

Unrelated Observations

by Duncan C. Atkins

The Administration has asked me to set up a committee dealing with the problems of drunken behavior. The committee will deal specifically with usually mild columnists who, after getting inebriated, have verbally abused cheerleaders from opposing schools, destroyed roommates' furniture and walked into some unsuspecting girl's room in the quad, quite literally baring his chest. The committee will meet in my room every Friday night. BYOB.

Two researchers at the University of Pennsylvania have found that social events in which the females pursue the males (such as next week's Lorelei) are psychologically damaging. The researchers, Drs. Michael K. Jervis and David Shropshire, conclude that the sudden role reversals lead to sexual confusion. Jervis and Shropshire report unusual behavior exhibited by both males and females. They give examples of girls gathering with whiskey and cigars, to discuss the relative virtue and attractiveness of their prospective dates. Statements such as "Yeah, he's cute, but does he...?" and "I like his buns" were not uncommon.

Conversely, men reportedly became nervous as the date of the affair approached, and those without dates reacted bitterly towards those who had already been asked. "I went in to ask my buddy which jacket looked better with my gray flannels," said James Thomas who participated in the study "and the SOB slugged me." Thomas reports that in the ensuing melee, his "buddy" who had not been asked to the affair, tore Thomas' slacks to shreds and ripped a sleeve off his jacket.

The study also reported that on the night of the dance, those males that did not get asked demonstrated distinctly feminine characteristics. "Many of the male subjects sat around knitting, baking pies and crying," said Dr. Shropshire.

"Obviously these reversed affairs led to sex role confusion among all parties concerned," concluded Dr. Jervis. When asked why he and Dr. Shropshire expended so much time and energy in this seemingly insignificant research, Dr. Jervis explained tearfully, "Dave and I are sick and tired of sitting around every time they have one of these Lorelei things, crying our eyes out. 'Tell the world,' Dr. Shropshire pleaded with this reporter, "what these damn things do to one masculinity. No more Lorelei's. Please!"

I am very much bored with the current fare of spectator sports. Basketball is a game for men much taller than I and hockey, quite literally, leaves me cold. Thank God, spring training is nearing.

1982 is, I believe, the year of the Astros. Trading Cesar Cedeño to the Reds for Ray Knight was a damn good move and should provide the Astros with another consistent hitter to complement the efforts of Mr. Howe. To say that the pitching staff is solid is an understatement. One day, when we have gained the necessary perspective on our own age, the Astros pitching staff of the early 80's will attain the same legendary proportions as the Yankee's "Murderer's Row" collection of sluggers in the late 20's. My sons will sigh in wistful amazement. "Ryan, Sutton, Niekro and Knepper on the same staff. Holy Cow."

To paraphrase Roger Angell, there is, in addition to the game played on the field for six months, another type of baseball. The Inner Game, Angell calls it, and it is best played in the mind when the snows of winter have covered the playing fields of summer. It is a game of high dramatics, poignant memories and cries of "wait 'till next year."

Through this, the "Winter of my Discontent," I have been kept sane by the memory of Alan Ashby's game winning homerun in the bottom of the ninth of the first playoff game, last season, between the Astros and the Dodgers. I have relived the sheer exultation I felt at that moment a hundred times. There may be those "naysayers" who claim that Ashby's Home-run was possible only because of the ridiculous "split season" concept introduced after the Grand Game's disastrous strike. They will argue further that justice was served when the Astros dropped the final three games to the Dodgers losing the series. I say to hell with them. To Mr. Ashby, I give my heartfelt thanks for making an excruciatingly frustrating four months bearable. 1982 will be our vindication. Al. A National League Pennant will at last hang in the Astrodome. Bet the house on it.

The Play's The Thing

"Whose Life is it Anyway?"

The nation's first hospital is located at 8th and Spruce. Two blocks down at 8th and Lombard a hospital room is taking shape! That's the setting for "Whose Life Is It Anyway?", the provocative, forceful play by English playwright Brian Clark, which opens at the Society Hill Playhouse, 507 South Eighth Street, Wednesday evening February 10 for a limited engagement.

The Society Hill Playhouse production of "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" marks the Philadelphia debut of the play which premiered at the Mermaid Theatre in London in 1978 and received its first American production on Broadway in 1979. "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" started out as a TV script. The film version starring Richard Dreyfuss is currently playing nationally.

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" is the powerfully moving story of a hospital patient, a victim of a highway accident who is paralyzed from the neck down. Instead of being in a coma, he is in full possession of his mental faculties. His name is Ken Harrison, and he was a sculptor prior to the accident. Sensitive, mischievously witty, formidably intelligent, he loves life too much to go through it immobilized by lingering infirmity. The character's very lack of mobility and movement is at once touching and frightening. Ken Harrison wants to be allowed to die and he battles for control over his own destiny. His opponents are the doctors and nurses who are determined to keep him alive.

The question in Brian Clark's drama is central in society today — the right of an individual to determine his own well being, a right that, in this case, challenges the extraordinary powers granted to medical authorities over the individual and can stand for other areas where the state and individual choice are in conflict, i.e. the abortion issue.

The New York Daily News called "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" — "A profound, touching, often very funny play that takes an uplifting view of death as an alternative to the hypocrisy of non-living. Here is a play that entertains while it makes you think forcing its spellbound audience to ask questions many of us have never dared to face."

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" is directed by Deen Kogan, set designed by Igor Belinkoff, lighting by Ray Buffington and costumes by Jacqueline Weiss. Technical assistance and guidance has been provided by Pennsylvania Hospital and Magee Memorial Hospital.

The central role of Ken Harrison is played by Doug Wild. Wild appeared at the playhouse earlier this season in Martin Sherman's award-winning drama "Bent" playing the central figure of Max to critical acclaim.

Featured in "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" are Liz Lanin as Dr. Scott, and Jim McCrane as Dr. Emerson. Floyd Alexander, Geoffrey Baer, Laura Clover, Jeremy Frey, Frank Greenberg, Frank Hotlen, Jane Jasulaitis, Jim McCormick, Alan Orlin and Bella Weil make up the supporting company.

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" will play Wednesday through Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. to March 13. Student tickets are available on Wednesday and Thursday evenings only. Parking is adjacent to the playhouse. The box office is open daily (except Sunday) at 10 a.m.

two women achieved at their same ability. Faculty members were given the opportunity to make comments on their students. These comments were not favorable towards pledging and many professors expressed concern for their students.

All pledges were allowed to respond to their pledging activities, but out of the 20 that did respond most felt that pledging improved their social life on campus. Most of them also agreed that pledging decreased their performances academically.

The academic reports of each sorority unfortunately supports views of the faculty members and pledges that pledging decreases academic performance. What numbers can't show, however, according to ISC are "the true rewards of sorority pledging are friendship and sisterhood for life."

Just What You're Looking For . . .

by A. Jeffrey Jacobson

How would you like to learn about deep sea diving in England during spring break? Or how about reed weaving in Latin America this summer? Perhaps these, or other activities may interest you, but you just don't know where to go to find out more.

The NRSCA 1982-83 directories might be just what you're looking for. There are three directories in all (Europe, Latin America and Britain-Ireland) and they offer many varied programs (500 listed in the brochure).

Anybody that is planning on traveling abroad will find the directories to be an invaluable resource (according to the publisher). Programs, offered by over 200 sponsoring organizations, range from a weekend to several months in length, and average $150 to $250 per week including meals and lodging. And they can be found on just about any topic imaginable (Aztec culture, photography, botany, graphic design, insects, yachting and windsurfing, to name a few). Over two years have gone into the research of the directories, and 2,500 organizations were contacted.

The directories range in price from $4.00 to $7.95 — a mere pittance compared to the information within. You can order from the brochure (contact The Grizzly) or by sending a check payable to NRSCA, 823 N. 2nd Street, Milwaukee, WI 53203.

Lloyd (cont'd)

Dr. Lloyd felt should have been approved due to the fact that they were within the "legal" standards of research work. Dr. Clouser, however, argued they did not reach certain standards and were possibly plagiarized. "Each believes that the other has made serious mistakes in professional judgment and is guilty of unfair and incorrect personal actions and statements."

This, the committee revealed, darkens Dr. Lloyd's record of advising, but once again categorically stated that no demonstrable connection existed between such judgment and its final decision.

Although the Appeals Committee did support the College's decision of May 22, 1981, not to grant tenure, they concluded that the College was responsible for poor judgment that created "great confusion and deep-seated misunderstandings." Two such conclusions stated that the College failed to "aggressively manage serious interpersonal conflicts in the German Dept.," as well as "failed to communicate appropriately to Dr. Lloyd, as early as possible, that low enrollment in German could prevent her tenure."

With such findings overshadowing the implications of the Committee's final and unanimous decision, the Committee felt obliged to make recommendations. They proposed that Dr. Lloyd drop legal action against the College, that the College agree to the appointment of Dr. Lloyd to a three year non-tenured position and that at the end of the second year of this appointment Dr. Lloyd be reconsidered for tenure. It was also stipulated that during this three year appointment Dr. Lloyd should work under and be evaluated by a person acceptable to both her and the administration. This would allow Dr. Lloyd to remain with the school in some capacity, which is agreeable with her.

The hearings lasted from Sept. 25, 1981 until Dec. 18, 1981. Another such Appeals Committee is expected to form soon to hear the case of Dr. Phillips (Biology Department), also concerning the matter of tenure.

UC Escape Series

The Way to a Man's Heart

Yes, folks, that age-old tradition of Lorelei is quickly approaching. While considering objects for my second article in the UC Escape Series several people proposed an article listing dining suggestions for the 'big' night. After all, what better way to a man's heart than through his stomach? So, in order to determine the choice eateries in the Collegeville area, I questioned an odd assortment of campus studs on their dining desires. Derek Pickell, USGA president and chairman said that the dinner of his dreams would be an evening at the Seven Stars Inn, Phoenixville. Famous for their 3 lbs. prime rib, the Seven Stars Inn also offers an extensive menu of fresh fish, all including two veggie and salad. Weekend prices range from $12.95 to $17.95 for meat dinners and up to $22.95 for the seafood special of the house. When asked if he was worth it, Derek quickly replied "OK, I'll pay half."

Drew Pecora, Grizzly Sports Editor and wide-receiver for the Ursinus Bears, overwhelmingly endorsed the Jefferson House as the best restaurant in the area. Located in a fine, old Georgian mansion, the atmosphere is casually elegant and perfectly suited for a memorable meal. Like Derek, Drew's tastes run a little expensive, as the average entree is $12. and up. Unlike Derek, Drew believes that he is worth it, after all, it isn't often that a UC woman has a chance to take Drew out. Given the opportunity she might as well go all out!

Ricky Hope, star of the soccer field and tall, dark and silent stud of Curtis 2 had a difficult time deciding which area restaurant he would select. After many moments of contemplation, Ricky recalled high times he had at the Lakeside Inn in Limerick. This old country house offers a warm, relaxing, rustic atmosphere. Lakeside Inn offers consistently high quality traditional entrees of steak and seafood, providing ample portions for the couple who arrives ready to chow down. Prices range from $6.95 for chicken to $13.95 for Prime Rib, somewhat more reasonable than the previously mentioned restaurants.

Greg Braccia, pseudodweeb and closet discomaniac stated that the woman of his dreams would have to be just like mom, and where else could he go but Mom's favorite restaurant, Mr. Ron's in King of Prussia. Their menu mainly consists of seafood, served in such deliciously creative concoctions as shrimp and scallop romeno over homemade pasta. The Victorian interior lends itself to intimacy and features a vocalist-guitarist on Friday evenings. Highly acclaimed by a number of UC students, Mr. Ron's restaurant offers delicious entrees for an average of $7.

The most economical proposal was supplied by Boston import and bearded Brodbeck stud, Pete Hotz, who readily confessed "I'm still available." Pete's notion of the ideal Lorelei dinner is a trip to the beer distributor and a stop at Marzella's. "Pizza and beer, I'm a cheap date, and easy to please."

Whether you opt for the all out four course meal or decide on an in room wine and cheese bash, don't just sit on campus next Friday night! Come to Indian Valley Country Club and enjoy a night of dancing and debauchery with the rest of us!

Drs. Miller Inaugural Tour Leaders . . .

Japanese Program Opens This Summer

The faculty of Ursinus College in collaboration with Tohoku Gakuin University in Sendai, Japan, has announced the establishment of a Summer Study in Japan program. The Program is a five-week, three credit interdisciplinary course beginning May 28 and ending July 1, 1982, comprising three weeks of instruction by English-speaking professors at Tohoku Gakuin University and two weeks of travel and touring throughout Japan.

The inaugural tour leaders are Dr. Eugene Miller, Professor of Political Science at Ursinus and his wife, Dr. Jessie Miller, former lecturer in sociology at Ursinus and most recently a senior research scholar at the Institute of Advanced Studies and Director of Social Studies at the US Army War College in Carlisle, Pa. The Millers have traveled extensively in South-east Asia and have lectured in India, Taiwan, and the People's Republic of China. They spent a year in Japan where Dr. Eugene Miller was a Fulbright Professor and Dr. Jessie Miller taught English to engineers and university students.

Tohoku Gakuin University and Ursinus are "sister" institutions, both historically affiliated with the United Church of Christ. For the past ten years, the two schools have collaborated in an American Studies Program held here at Ursinus for Tohoku Gakuin students. For three weeks in July and August, approximately 35 students participate in the annual Program, which has been directed for the past two years by Professor Ross Doughty, Chairman of the History Department, and Mrs. Catherine C. Wilt, Audiovisual Librarian. The establishment of the Summer Study in Japan Program completes this reciprocal exchange program by sending students to Sendai.

The objectives of the Program are: to provide the students with an introduction to, and knowledge and appreciation of Japanese language, literature, culture, history, politics, religion, and society; and to enable the students to travel and visit various parts of Japan and participate in homestay visits with Japanese families.

The overall theme of the three-week course taught at Tohoku Gakuin will be "Toward Understanding Japan — Past and Present." The format of the course will include short lectures and classroom discussions of assigned readings, films, and field trips related to the daily topics such as, "Japan's Impact on the World Economy," "Formation of Present-Day Japan," "A Different Beauty: The Japanese Novel," "The World of Japanese Kanji." Beginning instruction in the Japanese language will also be given. Classroom instruction will be enriched and supplemented by two week-end field trips and by the two-week tour which will follow the course in Sendai. On these trips, the group will visit Tokyo, Osaka, and Hiroshima, the former imperial capitol at Kyoto, the Kamakura shrine and other points of scenic, historical and cultural interest.

Students must have completed the freshman year at the college or university level in good standing in order to participate in the Program. Interested students can prepare for the experience by taking relevant courses in any of these areas: anthropology, economics, history, philosophy, religion, political science, sociology, foreign languages, or literature. A suggested reading list will be distributed to students and pre-departure preparation meetings will be required.

In support of the newly established program, Tohoku in their preparation for the summer study abroad experience as well as complement the library's collection for courses covering aspects of Japanese life and culture on campus.

If you would like to enroll in the Program or want more information contact Mrs. Wilt in the Library or call extension 286. This is sure to be the chance of your lifetime (and would also make a great graduation gift).

The cost of the five-week program is approximately $2,500 plus the cost of tuition for three semester hours at Ursinus (Summer Study in Japan is course number 041-401). The $2,500 will cover the air fare to and from Japan, all housing accommodations in Japan (hotels and home visits), most meals, land transportation, admission fees, and texts and pedagogical materials. The cost may vary slightly according to the cost of the flight, which is based upon the number of students who participate in the program. The trip will only be held if a

Campus

Gakuin has donated to Ursinus a collection of over 50 books on Japanese society, culture, history, language, literature and religion. This generous gift will aid Ursinus students minimum of five students sign up for the course.

The deadline for enrollment is March 15. A deposit of $100 will be required at that time to ensure your place in the Program.

Kane . . .

fraternity representatives and administrators must engage in a blunt debate over these issues.

For this debate to be effective, administrators must recognize the right of a fraternity to develop independence. Conversely, a fraternity must recognize an administrator's right to require responsible behavior. Above all, both must be able to demand honesty and forthright treatment from each other.

As fraternities and administrators enter this year's pledging period, we will follow the procedure worked out over the last few years. We may even improve it.

In this procedure, representatives from each fraternity will meet regularly with administrators to discuss their pledging program. The goal of these meetings will be to anticipate borderline cases which will require debate.

There will be heated discussion over the application of the principles of "independence" and "responsibility" to specific pledging activities. We will succeed in resolving some issues and probably fail in resolving others. Dare we hope that the process also will liberally educate?

Very truly yours,

Sports Briefs...

Wrestling

by Chuck Groce

This past Wednesday the Grappling Bears traveled to Muhlenberg College to take on the mules of Muhlenberg and Kutztown State. The best the Bears could do, though, was come away with a split. The Grapplers opened up with a 24-15 victory over Muhlenberg on a fine effort by the upper weights. After a sputtering start the Bears got their first win at 142 lbs. where Scott Browning opened up with a third period pin. Dwayne Doyle (150 lbs.) followed Browning with a victory and Prody Ververeli (158 lbs.)

gave the team his first victory of the season. With the team trailing 15-12, Chuck Groce defeated his opponent to tie the score, and Ron Wenk (190 lbs.) with a first period pin put the Bears up to stay. Bob Citta then went out and iced the victory with a decisive win.

The nightcap saw the Bears drop one to Kutztown 29-18 in a match that saw only three Bear winners. Scott Browning (142 lbs.) received a forfeit and Chuck Groce pinned his man in 1:03 before Ron Wenk closed out the scoring with a pin.

Men's Lacrosse

by Glenn A. Parno

The Ursinus College Men's Lacrosse Club tryouts are scheduled to begin today at the Ritter Utility Gym from 4 to 6 p.m. Once the ground thaws, workouts will be held every day until the season begins.

Current practice consists mainly of running and calisthenics, meant to increase the endurance necessary for Lacrosse. Later outdoor practices will include drills, running and intersquad scrimmages.

The first game this year is scheduled for March 22 against Widener College at home. Home games are held at the "Rockpile," which is the playing field located between New Men's Dorm and Helfferich Hall. This year's tough schedule consists of eight games and includes meetings with such teams as Bloomsburg, Dickinson and Swarthmore.

Lacrosse is a hart hitting, fast moving sport and all students interested in playing are encouraged to attend Friday's practice. Head Coach David Rebeck desires, "students with determination who display a lot of hustle." The team carries around forty players and Coach Rebeck expects a big turnout again this year.

Coach Rebeck added that the Lacrosse team is still a club but hopes to soon be acknowledged by the College as a Varsity sport.

Women's IM B-ball

has attracted an awesome 70 participants for the league this year. Divided into seven teams who do battle every Tuesday and Thursday night, commissioners Joan Groome and Deb Brackett are more than pleased with the activity's success in the early going. "It's ideal for the ex-high school player," Groome said. "Our teams have some very good individuals and the competition can be pretty intense sometimes." But it's all in fun, she added, and a good break from sitting around and studying all winter. "Teams have even gotten their own T-shirts," she said. The California Dreamers with Traci Davis, Linda Fithian, Rosie Naab, Barb Mathers and Wendy Wallace, and the Bad Mam-jamas with Traci Cherry, Wendy Bjornson, Linda Hetherington, and Carol Krajewski currently top the standings with undefeated records.

Aquamen Swamp E-town

by Joe Rongione

Last Wednesday the Bears lost their first post-break meet at Widener. The 68-35 score hid some fine performances. Bill Lacy swam a fine 200 yard freestyle. Brian Dohner lowered his best times in the 100- and 50-yd freestyles. races.

That Saturday, the Bears bounced back to defeat Western Maryland. Bill Lacy led off a strong Medley Relay with co-captains Joe Rongione and Jamie Forlini. Brian Dohner finished off the relay. John Lavell easily won the 1000 yd. freestyle and then Bill Lacy and Jamie Forlini finished a strong 1-3 in the 200 yd. freestyle. Brian Dohner then won the 50 yd. freestyle. Divers Jim Giardenelli and Kevin Kunkle took 1-2 in both the 1 meter required and optional diving. Doug Korey and Joe Rongione finished 1-2 in the 200 yd. breaststroke, both lowered their times by a second.

The Bears' record jumped up to 4-2 when they swamped Elizabethtown College. The Tuesday meet allowed the Aquabears to lose some more seconds off of their best times. Doug Korey chopped two seconds off his 200 yd. I.M. time. Ira Bellow brought down his 200 yd. breaststroke time while Joe Rongione and Doug Korey finished 1-2 in the same event. Brian Dohner won the 100 yd. freestyle while John Lovell powered his way to a victory in the 50 yd. freestyle. Jamie Forlini returned to the 200 yd. butterfly and, even without competition, flew to a good time. Bill Lacey swam unopposed in the 200 yd. backstroke but finished with a 2:12.

The Bears travel to Swarthmore this Wednesday and hope to be 5-2 Wednesday night.

Racqueteers rolling

Key victories in pressure-packed situations by third-singles' player Connie Bleiler sparked the women's badminton team to two excellent efforts against West Chester and Franklin & Marshall on successive days.

The freshman player took the final two games 11-3 and 11-4, after dropping the first to clinch Wednesday's 3-2 win over F&M, and slipped by an experienced West Chester player Tuesday to add her win in Ursinus' 3-2 loss against the team that placed second in last year's PAIAW's.

The match with West Chester, as Coach Adele Boyd put it, was "an exciting good loss," if there is such an animal. "It was unexpected (that we would do so well) and (felt) good," she said. Second doubles team Deb Brackett and Sandi Strohecker was Ursinus' other winner.

Those two also teamed to provide a crucial win on Wednesday as they stomped their opponents, 15-2, 15-8. Singles' player Laura Ludwick's heart-stopping 11-8, 12-10 match was no less important. But with the score knotted at two matches apiece, Bleiler battled back after losing the first game to even up her match, then breezed in the all-deciding rubber game to send the visitors home losers.

First singles Lori Kowalski and doubles Joan Groome and Amy Rowland played well in their match losses; F & M's highly experienced opponents were the villains. Nevertheless, the win upped the team's record to 3-2; again, the two losses belonging at the hands of conference heavyweights.

Women Splash to Victory

Three consecutive years.

That's how long the Ursinus' women's swim team has gone winless against the powerful Glassboro State Profs. The 1981-82 version of the Lady Bear swim team wants to stop this streak at three.

According to coach Bob Sieracki, "We are seeking revenge. For three years they have beaten us pretty badly and we would like to turn the score around this year. We have the women."

Swimming well is not what the women did last Saturday, though. The Lady Bears saw their undefeated record blemished with a sound whipping, 71-42, at the hands of Western Maryland.

The Lady Bears' two victories came in the 40 lap, 1000 free, with freshman Debbie Clough swimming, in Sieracki's opinion, "an outstanding race" and also dropping seven seconds off the school record, and in the 200 free relay. The winning quartet were Amy Hill, Joan Buehler, co-captain Barb Bowden and Joanne Bateman. Sieracki analyzes the meet: "We are relying too much on one another, thinking that the others will pick up the slack if we do not do well. We also were just not hungry enough. Hopefully, we will rebound."

Ursinus did indeed rebound on Tuesday with a thrashing of Elizabethtown 62-40.

Leading the way were double winners Barb Bowden, Lynn Engler and Meg Early. Engler won the 500 free and was a member of the victorious 400 medley relay which also included Debbie Clough, Joan Buehler and co-captain Joanne Greenlee.

Rounding out the Ursinus wins were Kate Cisek in the 100 back and Amy Hill in the 100 M. Valuable points were contributed by Karen Hanson, Marie McBride, Linda Schillinger, Lisa Strauss, and Bonnie Keene who came from behind to capture third place in the 500 free.

The win raised Ursinus' record to a sparkling 5-1.

Sterling Brown to Take Over Football Team

After two weeks of waiting it is finally official: the UC Bears have a new head football coach. The man chosen to lead the team, Sterling Brown, has a wealth of football knowledge behind him. This includes collegiate participation as well as 21 years of coaching experience.

As an athlete Mr. Brown graduated from East Stroudsburg State College lettering in four different sports. He has a Bachelor and Masters degree in physical education. As a football player he earned All-Pennsylvania, All-Conference and Little All-American honors, and participated in the 1961 Senior Bowl.

As a coach, he has been at one high school and nine colleges. His first college coaching job was at his alma-mater, East Stroudsburg, in 1963. From there he has traveled to Hofstra University, United States Naval Academy, Villanova University, Drexel University, University of Pennsylvania, Temple University and lastly the University of Virginia. At Drexel he was the head coach for five years; all the other jobs were as assistants.

Now head coach of the Bears, he knows he has to get started right away. Close to three months behind in recruiting already, he has made that his first priority. His next objective is to round out his coaching staff. He plans a meeting to help resolve this issue almost immediately.

After getting these two projects on the way, he plans to evaluate the team. This includes the system and the personnel. Mr. Brown feels "It is important to have a player playing the right position. A player may be right for one position and if he isn't there, he is not only hurting the team but also himself." To get this under way, he plans on meeting first with the team as a whole, then with each player individually. He wants to know what type of personnel he is dealing with. "I expect 100% from everybody all the time. That goes for myself, all the coaches, the players and all the trainers and managers too."

When the question of whether he would try to rebuild with younger players came up he had this comment. "I want an all out effort, and the players that give me that won't be sitting on Saturdays. I'm going to play the 11 best players the situation calls for, whether that player is a freshman or a senior."

When football season rolls around next fall, Sterling Brown will be leading the Bears into a new era of UC football. Mr. Brown sums up his approach for years to come. "I'm excited about this opportunity, it's a big challenge and I'm excited to get started. I plan on running an aggressive program, and this year we're going to make things happen."

Sterling Brown, the new man behind the Bears.

Girls Dump Mighty Macs

by Jean Morrison

On Tuesday, Feb. 2, the women's basketball team played perhaps their finest game of the season so far, defeating heavily favored Immaculata, 81-78. Ursinus, in gaining their highest point total of the season, had four players in double figures. Sophomore Jo Zierdt led the team with 18 points. Senior Gwen McKeon had 16, 15 of which came in the first half. Junior Margaret Tomlinson put in 15 points and led the team in rebounds with 12. Senior Lynda Nelson founded out the scoring with 14 points and Freshman Cheryl Raithe and Sophomore Mo Gorman were excellent off the bench for the Bears.

The first half saw a man-to-man defense by Ursinus. And even though the Bears had sloppy moments once in a while, they stayed right with the mighty Macs throughout the half. Ursinus showed aggressive hustle which resulted in many steals for the Bears. UC's good solid shooting, especially McKeon with her 15 first-half points, was pivotal in ending the half with a Bear lead of three.

In the second half, the excitement picked up. There were many steals and turnovers by both teams. The Macs shut down McKeon, holding her to only one point in the half, but Zierdt picked up the slack dumping 10 of her 18 points in the second half. The Ursinus defense was tough and held their ground while on offense the Bears turned many fast breaks. The score remained within 2 to 4 points back and forth until the 8 minute mark. From that point on UC never relinquished the lead and were tied only three times. With 1:16 left the score stood at 78-78. Senior needed this game to keep up their playoff aspirations. With this in mind, they went out and clubbed Hopkins 73-63. In this game, Tom Broderick was outstanding, scoring 20 points and having his best rebounding day ever. His old record for rebounds was 23; against Hopkins he pulled down 25. He also contributed five blocked shots to Ursinus victory. Jack Devine, who had 14 points, was instrumental in this victory with some good shooting that kept Hopkins from closing in. This victory put UC back into second place in the division, ahead of Hopkins.

Tom Broderick, despite an early season injury, is having a very fine year. For the second time this season, Broderick has been named to the ECAC Honor Roll. Tom is 14th in the nation in rebounding and first in the MAC. Teammate Dave Petitta is fourth in the MAC in rebounding.

Sally McGrath hit a bucket at :58 for an 80-78 lead. Tomlinson then sealed the win with a free throw with four seconds left making the final score 81-78.

The girls next games are today at Glassboro at 3:30 p.m.; at F&M tomorrow at 2:30 p.m.; at home against Cabrini College on Feb. 9 at 7 and a game that is bound to be a thriller with West Chester on Thursday, Feb. 11 at home.

Broderick Honored . . .

B-Ball Takes Two

The Bear basketball team kept their playoff hopes alive this past week by winning two of their three games. These three games saw them first lose to Widener then bounce back to beat both Moravian and Johns Hopkins.

In the important game against Widener, UC just couldn't seem to get it together and trailed at the half 22-33. The second half didn't show much improvement, and the Bears dropped a 76-59 decision. Tom Broderick led scorers with 21 points, and Jay DeFrusco contributed 17.

The next game against Moravian turned out much better. In this game, the Bears broke open a tied half time score and went on to win 69-63. Jay DeFrusco and Tom Broderick led the offensive attack, both with 17 points.
